Holliday Lake hours increased

Ronald D. Sutton, Commissioner of State Parks, announced the extension of swimming hours and the addition of a swimming class at Holliday Lake State Park this summer.

"The extended swimming hours and free swimming classes are being provided in coopration with the park concessionaire, Mr. J. P. Glenn, to better serve the overnight campers and local residents who use Holliday Lake", said Commissioner Sutton.

Effective immediately, swimming hours have been extended on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings until 8 p.m., and a swimming class will be conducted each Wednesday evening from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Holliday Lake State Park is located 17 miles east of Appomattox, via State Route 24. Visitors to Holliday Lake can also enjoy sailing, picnicking, hiking, a visitor information center and interpretive programs conducted during the summer months.

For additional information, call the park at (804) 248-6308 or the Division of Parks Richmond Office (804) 786-2132.

Cavern benefits kidney research

Research on preventive measures for kidney failure underway at the University of Virginia School of Medicine is almost $50,000 richer today, thanks to a gift from the Luray Caverns Wishing Well.

The money will finance a two-year research project directed by Dr. Nuzhet O. Atuk, professor of internal medicine in the Renal Division at U. Va. The research will focus on improving techniques to prevent acute kidney failure and to prolong kidney preservation before transplantation.

Dr. Atuk and his colleagues hope to gain direct evidence that a new class of drugs, calcium entry blockers, may be used to do this. If successful, the technique may eliminate the need for costly dialysis.

For sufferers of renal disease, sucessful kidney transplants are considered superior to treatment by dialysis machines, which are extremely costly and often inconvenient.

The gift of $48,436, representing a four and one-half year harvest from the cave pool, raises to $208,476 the total of charitable contributions dispensed by the famous underground wishing well at Luray since 1954. About two million coins, weighing 14,500 pounds, comprised the largest treasure.

The gift for U. Va. kidney research is the largest in Luray Caverns lengthening history of charitable donations says H. T. N. Graves, President. Prior recipients have included the March of Dimes, American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Muscular Dystrophy Association and the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Luray's Wishing Well is probably the world's most productive. The six-foot deep underground pool of glass-clear, still water now elicits contributions from 88 percent of all visitors to the world-renowned cavern in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley.

Flying Aces Perform

1910-1982

On Tuesday, May 18, 1982, a funeral service was held at Hebron Baptist Church for Eugene Watson Carson, affectionately known as "Kit". He was 71, a dairyman, and manager of Carson Farms, Inc. The service was conducted by his pastor and friend, Carl Patton, just returned from the Holy Land the night before.

Kit died at his residence at 6:30 p.m., Sunday, May 16, 1982, and had attended Sunday school and church that morning. He is survived by his wife, Ruth Glenn Carson, two sons, Daniel E. Carson, currently serving with the Southern Baptist Mission Board in Kenya, and Eugene W. Carson, Jr., of Blacksburg; a grandson, four granddaughters; two sisters, Mrs. R. H. Thornhill of Appomattox, and Mrs. Mary Cawthorne of St. Petersburg, Fla., and one brother, Carey E. Carson of Appomattox.

Kathy Parsons

He was born in Appomattox County, the son of the late Carey E. Carson and Irene Chick Carson.

He was graduated from VPI in 1931 with a Bachelor's Degree in Dairy Husbandry and was instrumental in obtaining the first milk plant in Franklin County; a member, deacon, and Sunday school teacher of Hebron Baptist Church; and district agent emeritus of Virginia Cooperative Extension Service. He was a director of Farmers National Bank, a charter member of the Appomattox Investment Club, a Mason, and member of the Oakville Ruritan Club, in which he served in all official capacities.

While serving as extension agent, he was the prime mover in the organization of, and also charter member of, five Ruritan clubs; two in Cumberland County, two in Franklin County, and one in Appomattox County. Additionally, he was instrumental in the organization of the Zone Governor.

A gentleman, a scholar, and a friend always willing to help, he will be sorely missed by his family and his many friends.

BLACKSBURG – A 16-year-old Appomattox County youth has been named winner of the 1982 State 4-H photography award.

Kathy Parsons, daughter of Issac and Alese Parsons, Concord, was recognized during the 60th annual 4-H Congress.

She will receive merchandise. Donor of the award is the Virginia 4-H Fund.

The 1982 Club Congress attracted approximately 1,400 youth, volunteer leaders, Extension staff members and friends to participate in the program which was held on the Virginia Tech campus, Monday to Friday, June 21-25. The theme of the congress was "Pathways to Success."

The delegates, all of whom are winners in one of the 4-H projects, were involved in such activities as awards presentations, recreation, music, and sports and they also learned about other 4-H programs.

Featured this year were sessions by each of Virginia Tech's colleges to tell the young people about what it is like to be a college student, particularly at Virginia Tech.

The group also heard talks by several 4-H leaders, including Kenneth E. Dawson, state director of 4-H. It is the youth program of the Virginia Extension Service.

Award made

The Department of Accounting at Virginia Tech's College of Business has named the first winners of an endowed award established by J. B. Drinkard Jr., partner in the Lynchburg public accounting firm or Brockman, Drinkard, Pennington & Burch.

Carol J. Barnickel, a 1982 graduate of the college's Master of Accountancy program, and Janet W. Mabie, a rising senior, became the first recipients of the Williams S. Gay Accounting Achievement Award, the highest honor a Virginia Tech accounting student can achieve, at the Department of Accounting's annual May banquet. Barnicke, who graduated summa cum laude from the university's undergraduate program in accounting, passed the May 1981 CPA examination and has accepted a positon with Price Waterhouse & Co. in Baltimore.
